“I’m a licensed auctioneer and I’ll tell you what, the fast-talking came in handy because we have a significant chunk of dialogue that is spoken very, very quickly and I had to pull out those old auctioneering skills to get it out without stumbling all over the words.”

– Christopher Gorham on his role in Justice League: War

IMTA alum Christopher Gorham (NY90) became a familiar face to TV watchers with guest-starring roles on many hit shows such as “Party of Five,” “Buffy the Vampire Slayer,” “CSI,” “Felicity” and “Without a Trace.” He starred for three seasons on the WB’s “Popular,” then in a series of one-season shows that included “Jake 2.0,” “Medical Investigation,” “Odyssey 5,” “Out of Practice” and “Harper’s Island.” It was in the memorable role as Henry Grubstick, Betty’s boyfriend on the hit “Ugly Betty,” that audiences finally developed a crush on Gorham the actor, a love-affair that continues as his star continues to rise.

Gorham voices the character of Flash/Barry Allen in the latest Warner Brothers/DC Comics animated movie, Justice League: War, which hits shelves today. Based on the 2012 graphic novel Justice League: Origin by Geoff Johns & Jim Lee, Justice League: War provides a glance into the world before the Justice League was created, and offers the initial animated incarnation of DC Entertainment's “The New 52.” When the powerful Darkseid and his massive, relentless forces invade Earth, a group of previously unaligned super heroes – misunderstood and, in some cases, hunted by the authorities – discover the only way to fend off the attack will be to work together as a cohesive unit. Batman, Superman, Wonder Woman, Green Lantern, Flash, Shazam and, in his origin story, Cyborg combine their respective talents in an all-out battle to save the planet.

Gorham currently stars as the blind CIA tech Auggie Anderson opposite Piper Perabo on the USA hit “Covert Affairs,” which will be entering its fifth season this summer. He is set to star in an upcoming story arc on ABC’s “Once Upon a Time.” The first episode when that series returns March 9 is titled “New York City Serenade” and will heavily explore what Emma’s life is like with Henry. According to TV Guide, Gorham is guest-starring as someone who is “an integral part of two characters’ lives.”
